

ONE DEAD, 2 MISSING IN FOREST FIRE

POLICEMAN KILLED IN PISTOL BATTLE WITH STORE ROBBER

Bandit Also Slain In
Duel—Detective
Wounded

CLEVELAND, O., April 21.—Guns of valiant peace officers and of the underworld spat fire here during the night and today Patrolman William Borgman, Joseph Flighter, a bandit, were dead and Detective Harry J. Hotchkiss was in a hospital.

"Stick 'em up," the desperado ordered a cigar store clerk and get back there again and get back there against the wall."

Hotchkiss leaped from behind the partition with drawn revolver. Flighter fired and missed Hotchkiss. The store clerk ran into the street, shouting: "Police! Help! Police!"

Borgman, who had heard the shots appeared on the scene. Borgman sounded a police riot call and leaped into the fray. Fighting his way into the store through a milling crowd that quickly gathered, Borgman picked his mark and began firing. Flighter felled Hotchkiss with a bullet in the leg. A dozen more shots were exchanged then Borgman and Flighter both found their marks and dropped simultaneously fatally wounded. Today Borgman's name was enrolled among Cleveland's list of heroes. His badge, No. 137, was placed in a case with those of other officers who have fallen in the line of duty, there to be commemorated.

Flighter was identified as the bandit who robbed two other United Cigar stores here two weeks ago. Authorities discounted the story that Hotchkiss was the officer who killed the bandit. Hotchkiss was lying on the floor, writhing in pain when Borgman burst into the place and confronted Flighter, they said.

In the duel that followed both fatally wounded each other simultaneously officials claim.

PEKING IS WITHOUT GOVERNMENT NOW

PEKING, April 21.—Peking is without a government today following the flight of former President Tuan Chi Jui to Tien Tsin. There are indications that the situation will be further aggravated by a clash between the Manchurian troops of Marshal Chang Tso Lin and the army of We Pei Fu.

Foreign Minister Hue Wl Teh, who nominally is acting premier, informed the foreign diplomats today that he was concerned only with foreign affairs, thus leaving the government without a responsible head.

Removal of troops from the capital has relieved the situation somewhat within the walls, but the general aspect is chaotic.

INDIFFERENCE OF CITIZENS IS SCORED BY CHIEF JUSTICE HERE

Judge Marshall Tells Masonic Club Ills Of Poor Citizenship—Speculation and Divorce Two Evils To Be Combated, He Says

Defining the term "citizen," Judge Carrington T. Marshall, Columbus, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, gave citizenship a searching arraignment declaring "modern indifference of citizens to government is monumental, has a degrading effect, is the committing of an economic blunder and exerts a cheapening effect in the moral sense of the average person," in an address at an open meeting of the Xenia Masonic Club at the Masonic Temple, Tuesday night.

"is not merely evading the law but involves knowledge of the working of the machinery of the government."

"The United States, for the past ten or fifteen years has been engulfed in a wave of social and industrial unrest. A wave of crime and radicalism has the world in its grasp. America is no exception. In fact, the greatest offender today."

"Americans are making a closer study of conditions than ever before, combating them by organization of clubs, not for pleasure but for the purpose of acquiring a better view of citizenship."

"We think of law and government in times of peace and prosperity but in times of stress or war or crime it is carefully weighed and measured."

"We owe it as a public duty to aid public officials. Captains of industry will say skilled laborers are the real economic producers; private soldiers are the backbone of the army, and so the relation exists between the public and public officials."

Carrying the simile one step further,

In demanding the removal of Felton, Crabbe cited the operation of booths at Beulah Park, where he charged, par mutual machines were being used.

"These booths are being operated within the corporate limits of Grove City and I demand that Felton be removed as mayor," Crabbe's complaint to the governor said.

Crabbe's complaint was believed to have marked the attorney general's inauguration of warfare against race track gambling. He asserted last fall and again early this spring that those responsible of betting at race tracks would be prosecuted.

SAY DETECTIVE WAS SLAYER

LYONS TAKES STAND AT TRIAL; ACCUSES OFFICER OF CHARGE

Case Expected To Reach
Jury On Thursday

NORWALK, O., April 21.—"Morgan fired the shot that killed McGrath," James Lyons, Havana desperado on trial for the murder of Frank McGrath, American Railway Express Company declared today, testifying in his own behalf.

The Morgan Lyons referred to was James Morgan, another express company detective who accompanied McGrath to the Lyon home the day McGrath was slain. The officers had gone to the Lyon home to arrest James and his brother, Leonard, on charges of robbery.

A hush settled over the court room as the alleged killer calmly walked to the witness stand in response to the call of his attorney, Melvin O. Rettig.

"I was backing McGrath, Morgan and the rest of them down stairs (at the Lyons home) when a man at the bottom of the stairs fired over the railing," Lyons testified, his face bearing no signs of emotion or stress. "McGrath was above us. The bullet hit him and he fell down the stairs."

Lyons said the man firing the gun was Morgan, then he changed his statement, saying he "believed the man was Morgan."

Under a severe grilling by Assistant Prosecutor Frank Carpenter, Lyons admitted shooting McGrath in the neck. McGrath died from a bullet in the heart. "I fired only three shots," the alleged killer declared, "one at McGrath, one at the man at the bottom of the stairs and one into the door of the room in which Adelman (Deputy Sheriff Frank Adelman) had gone."

The state rested its case yesterday and it is now expected taking of testimony may be completed this afternoon, with the possibility the case will go to the jury late tomorrow.

Lyons said he had seven reasons for surrendering ten days ago, seventeen hours after his escape from the county jail.

"But I won't tell any of them," he said. "I'll leave everybody guess for themselves. My friends helped me get back."

He refused to say who his friends were.

REBUILDING OF ETERNAL CITY STARTS ON ITS ANNIVERSARY

ROME, April 21.—Demolition of Roman slums and the rebuilding of the Eternal City so that "within five years it will be restored to the glory and grandeur of the reign of Augustus" began today on the anniversary of the founding of Rome. Early this year Premier Mussolini ordered the ancient architectural glories should be revived. Today at 9 a. m. the first stone was laid in the wall which will run along the new Barberini and half an hour later the first pick blow bit into the slums which have grown up around and long marred the beauty of the theater Marcellus.

Duchess Of York Mother Of Bab That May Some Day Be English Queen

LONDON, April 21.—The glad tidings, that mother and child were doing well sped to the corners of the British Empire today from the modest house at Mayfair, where the young Duchess of York this morning presented the royal family with a baby girl who might some day sit on the throne in Buckingham Palace as Queen of England and Empress of India.

It was believed the baby will be named Mary, for the queen. Sheets of congratulatory messages began pouring into the home before dawn. The baby was born at 2:40 a. m. and the news was immediately telephoned to King George and Queen Mary.

The baby is the third royal grandchild and the first granddaughter and she has the distinction of being third in line for succession to the throne. If the Prince should die without issue the new-comer's father, the Duke of York would become king, and his daughter would be formally recognized as heir presumptive until such time as a boy should be born into the family.

Just three years ago tomorrow the Duchess was married, the ceremony taking place with gorgeous pagentry in Westminster Abbey. The baby was born in the room occupied by her mother long before it was suspected that she would some day be a royal bride and perhaps the mother of a queen.

The royal baby was saluted with forty-one guns by the Hyde Park batteries at 10 a. m. and at noon an identical salute roared from the guns of the tower of London. Princess Mary was the first royal victor to be received by the little princess, and she was soon followed by the Lady Mayoress of London. The Duke of York appeared briefly at a window with a smile for the crowd outside.

Only the Queen, Princess Mary and the Duchess of York will take precedence over the new-comer until the Prince of Wales marries—if he does. The Duke is thirty-one years old, the second son of their majesties and next in line for the throne after Wales.

EXPLOSION WRECKS YOUNGSTOWN STORE ROOMS; LOSS $75,000

Ammonia Tank Lets Go
In Business District

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 21.—An ammonia tank explosion wrecked the Cincquegrano and Muscucci meat market here today and partially razed the People's Furniture Company building adjoining causing damage conservatively estimated at $75,000. No one was reported injured.

Fire followed the blast transforming the twisted masses of timbers and steel into a raging inferno. Great clouds of smoke swirled about the debris as a general alarm came from all parts of the city.

After three hours of heroic work firemen subdued the blaze which for a time menaced an entire block.

The rear of the Antler Hotel and walls of a grocery store adjacent to the two buildings, collapsed as the fire ate its way through the wreckage.

The major loss was sustained by the furniture company which estimated its damage at $50,000.

Police immediately began an investigation of the explosion, believing they said, that some one had tampered with the ammonia cylinder.

BROKEN HEART WAS PARTIAL CAUSE OF DEATH OF FIGHTER

Failure To Win Is Said
To Have Been Responsible

MILWAUKEE, April 21.—A broken heart because he failed to win was no less responsible for the death of Sencio Maldez, 21-year-old Filipino boxer, than the fact an artery in his brain had been burst according to Sencio's trainer, "Whitey" Ekwert.

"The boy had a big heart," Ekwert said. "And his big heart was set upon becoming a champion. Maybe Taylor's pounding caused his death—but I believe he might have overcome his injuries if he had won the fight."

Sencio died yesterday as a result of a hemorrhage he suffered in a boxing exhibition with Bud Taylor the "Terre Haute Terrier."

No action is to be taken against Bud Taylor, according to District Attorney Eugene Wingert, who explained that boxing matches are legal in Wisconsin and that all the rules of the game had been followed.

Sencio had been pronounced physically fit by a physician shortly before the bout.

WHEELER DEMANDS ADDITIONAL TIME TO PRESENT DRY CASE

Reed Answers With
Charge Committee
Is Unfair

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Drys and wets re-opened their clash over the question of fairness and procedure of the senate prohibition committee at the hearing drew near a close today.

Wayne B. Wheeler, chief counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, demanded the dries be allotted three additional hours because Senator Jim Reed, Democrat, Missouri wet, had taken up that much time in cross-examining their witnesses.

Reed had already taken to the floor of the senate charges that the dry members of the committee were treating him unfairly in forcing hearings to proceed yesterday afternoon despite his wish for an adjournment.

Julian Codman, wet prosecutor, protested against the action of Wheeler and said the dry members of the committee had taken up such wet time in cross-examination of dry witnesses. Wheeler also demanded the dries be permitted to make concluding arguments instead of the wets.

The committee took both arguments under advisement. Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron Foundation of Indiana, pleaded with the committee to ignore any laws designed to weaken the Volstead act.

The first farmer to appear before the committee was S. L. Strivings, of Castle, N. Y., representative of the New York State Grange.

"We are a farm folk who stand for the best in rural life," Strivings said. "We register disapproval against any plan to amend the Volstead act in any way."

MINISTER TO FACE CHARGES OF CHURCH

CROTON, O., April 21.—Charges of "conduct unbecoming a minister of the gospel" were preferred against the Rev. James A. Troke, deposed pastor of the Eastwood Congregational Church, Columbus, when the Central Ohio Association of Congregational churches convened here today.

A communication containing the allegations was presented by the Rev. John A. Schmink of Columbus, who accused the Rev. Troke of making a false affidavit when he obtained a license to wed a former Oberlin college co-ed.

Rev. Schmink coupled his charges with a demand that Troke be unfrocked. The complaint was referred to a committee appointed by the association administrative board and a report, unfrocking the minister, was expected some time this afternoon.

Rev. Troke, in obtaining the marriage license was said to have made an affidavit that he had never been married before. Evidence obtained by Schmink revealed he had been married twice, his first wife having died and his second having divorced him.

Troke said he would fight the charges although he was not present when the association met today.

VICTIM OVERTAKEN TRYING TO ESCAPE FLAMES IN JERSEY

Companions Are Not Found—Villages Are
Imperilled

TOMS RIVER, N. J., April 21.—One dead and two missing stood as the toll of a fierce forest fire that was spending itself today between Double Trouble and Pinewald, near here.

Harry Orsley, 65, was burned to death when the flames overtook him after he had abandoned his motor truck in the burning area. His charred body was found near Pinewald.

Two other men were riding in the truck with Orsley, but no trace of them has been found.

Aided by a fifty-five mile wind, the fire swept over an irregular horseshoe, thirty miles long, imperiling many small villages in Ocean County. Estimates place the burned area at 100,000 acres.

Fire fighters battled the blaze throughout the night while the New York-Atlantic Highway was closed with automobiles as the occupants watched the thrilling spectacle.

The forest was largely scrub pine which burned fiercely.

STRIKE AGREEMENT HANGS ON WHETHER LEADER WITHDRAWS

If Weisbord Quits Labor
Federation To Take
Case

PASSAIC, N. J., April 21.—Prospect for settlement of the New Jersey textile mills strike, now in its thirteenth week, appeared today to rest upon the willingness of Albert Weisbord to withdraw from his post of leadership.

Should Weisbord, the young Harvard graduate and alleged communist who organized the strike, leave the United Front Committee, it was understood the strike will be put into the hands of the American Federation of Labor, which will unionize the mill employees and begin negotiations with the employers.

The United Front Committee has announced the strikers are eager to enter preliminary negotiations, and that Henry T. Hunt, New York lawyer, has been engaged to represent them.

Governor Moore, as one of the members of a committee of four, will probably take part in any attempt at mediation.

Which mill owners have treated hesitantly Gov. Moore's offer of mediation.

EIGHTY YEAR OLD SOLDIER FEARS HE MAY BE RETIRED ON PENSION AT LAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 21.—We're the oldest soldiers. "Well, I don't know what I'd do if they kicked me out of the army now," declared James H. (Pop) Johnson, Civil War veteran and 81-year-old field clerk attached to the quartermaster corps at Fort Mason here.

"I went into the army when I was fourteen and I've been at it ever since—that's sixty-seven years, isn't it? I'm sort of used to this army life now."

Pop is worrying a bit about a new pension bill which may let him out.

"There's a bill before Congress now or something about retiring us old-timers. If the bill passes, well, I guess I'd have to build a little house near here somewhere and stick around anyway."

"They can't put me out now because the quartermaster corps isn't on the pension list."

Johnson fought in the Civil War, re-enlisted and fought through the Indian uprisings. He was in service during the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection and the Boxer campaign. He transferred to the quartermaster department here in 1906. During the World War he was found physically fit for service overseas but he never got away from Fort Mason.

"Retire from the army? I should say not," he replied when he was asked why he didn't quit service voluntarily. "There are several of us old fellows doing duty. There is Nat Poyntz, 80 years old, at Boston, and there is a fellow named Howard P. Snyder who is somewhere around 80."

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Admires The Robe De Style

BY J. V. JAY

Fashions appear to be fitting out. (A thing most people struggle to keep their figures from doing.) Mitzi is admiring an evening dress here, with a tight tier bolero effect which ends at a wide hip line. The skirt is very full over an underskirt.

But one can have infinite choice among the new robes de style, for they have become very popular. The figure at the left shows the style for scallops and the full skirted mode. On the right, a dress of taffeta showing the wide, wide skirt trimmed with frilled taffeta.

In afternoon frocks, the robe de style shows the tight basque. The neck and sleeves hark back to the quaintness of a great many years ago. The skirt is very full, and the hem line is uneven. It's a demur frock and Mitzi wonders if it's her type.

An this is the evening gown Mitzi selects. It's lace, which is one reason for its smartness. It has a bolero effect, an uneven hem, a flaring skirt, and at almost normal waistline, which are other new reasons in its favor. Mitzi, however, keeps her silhouette tall and slender.

MEDICINAL VALUE OF SILENCE

In a recent issue of The London Times an English physician complains of the new-racking strain of continuous and excessive noise in the world's metropolis and emphasizes the medicinal value, so to speak, of silence. His description of conditions in London and their effect upon the human system might apply to any large city in this country. There seems to be some danger of our losing the faculty of rest, he declares, and yet "silence is becoming one of the most important of modern medicines." This explains why physicians find it essential in many cases to get their "run-down" patients away to places where at least a measure of silence can be obtained.

One palliative for business men, he says, is the use of motor cars which enables them more quickly to get out of the din of the city, and makes it possible for them to live in suburbs at least partially exempt from the noises which assail them during working hours. The English have always been known for their addiction to week-ends. The custom is growing in the United States, but we are so strenuous in our sports and pleasures that it is doubtful if we derive the same degree of benefit therefrom as do our cousins across the sea. However, change of scene as well as of activities and noises, we are told, are beneficial, even if they last but a day or two. Perhaps it would be better for all of us if, instead of crowding the traditional two week's vacation with continuous and unusual exertions, we took our rests and silences in homeopathic doses.

SENSITIVE TO SUPPLY AND DEMAND

In few industries can the working of the supply and demand law be seen so regularly reflected in prices, as in petroleum products; the buyer of petroleum products at retail can almost determine the price of gasoline by watching current prices of crude petroleum, so quick and intimate is adjustment of price relations between them.

The relationship between crude oil and gasoline prices is as close as that between cream and butter. The price of the refined product is bound to rise in proportion to the increase in cost of crude supply.

BOOMERANG LAWS

GENERAL Pangalos, Greek dictator, some months ago issued a decree forbidding the wearing of skirts higher than thirteen inches from the ground and immediately the calf-length skirt gave way to the knee-length skirt in popularity among the modern daughters of Venus.

For a time the police made an honest effort to enforce the law of their one-man government, but this armed threat that made Pangalos dictator was unable to cover the knees of Greece. At first the women adopted an ingeniously designed skirt which permitted the wearer, upon the approach of a policeman, to lower it to the legal length, and then one feminine-of-personal liberty had herself arrested by wearing an abbreviated Paris creation in public. That was the end of Pangalos decree and was almost the end of his dictatorship.

From the experience of the dictator of the Greeks the governments of the world might well take a lesson. Apparently the Grecians are less concerned about the form of government they have than about the manner in which that government is administered. They seem content with the dictatorship as long as it does not interfere with the private affairs of the individual.

Too much zeal in enacting and enforcing laws has been the suicide of countless governments and in time will wreck the tyrannical administrations of Pangalos, Mussolini, the Russian soviet, and any other government which learns too late that, "That government governs best that governs least."

CHANGING BEAUTY

TIMES have changed! So have standards of beauty! What was once beauty isn't beauty now! Even Venus de Milo is declassé! Her prestige is of a past day. Her fame crumbles before the foreign and unsympathetic gaze of modernity. The Venus type isn't that of the modern American beauty.

Ned Wayburn, who helps pick and train the members of the chorus of a Broadway revue, has learned from his musical show experience that Venus would have a difficult time getting into a modern Broadway chorus. A comparison of her measurements with those of the stage beauties of today prove the marble breath of feminine perfection to be too buxom and otherwise excessively statuesque.

While Venus may no longer be a model of pulchritude in this country, she may still be the ideal of twentieth century Greek maidens. Beauty standards are neither universal nor eternal. Ravishing American beauties could not qualify in a beauty contest in Turkey, the Orient or South Africa. All races of men have the "eye for beauty," but they speak a babel of languages of beauty. The beautiful women must be tall in one country and short in another, rotunda in some and slender in others, fair skinned in some and olive complexioned in others, fine featured in some and coarse featured in others.

What is true of beauty is true of all that mankind cherishes. The sensation of the automobile show of yesterday is a pitiful antique today. Changing styles of architecture quickly convert the show place into an eyesore. Only a year separate the "stunning" from the "scream" in feminine attire.

CANTERBURY BELLS

I stand and look about today
And something plainly tells
The gardens are expecting May
And Canterbury Bells.

I cannot hear the slightest sound,
But somehow I can feel
A certain bustling underground
That's very near and real.

Strange mysteries are going on
Within the damp and gloom,
In worlds I cannot look upon
The roses plan to bloom.

But I can only guess their plans
And wait and watch them tell,
Convinced a greater work than man's
Goes on below the soil.

The power of God I feel and see
In every bud that swells,
In blossoms on the apple tree
And Canterbury Bells.

MARBLE SPICE CAKE

A Reader Friend has written to ask for specific directions for making a good marble spice cake. My favorite marble spice cake has a very delicate "marbled" effect—a mere faint suggestion of the darker streaks running through the cake. But one square of melted, unsweetened cake-chocolate, added to the dark batter, will deepen the color of the wavy marble-lines in the cake, if you care for a sharper contrast between white and dark.

Begin by creaming six tablespoons of butter in a mixing bowl, then adding one cupful of granulated sugar and blending well; also add three beaten (unseparated) eggs, and one teaspoon of vanilla.

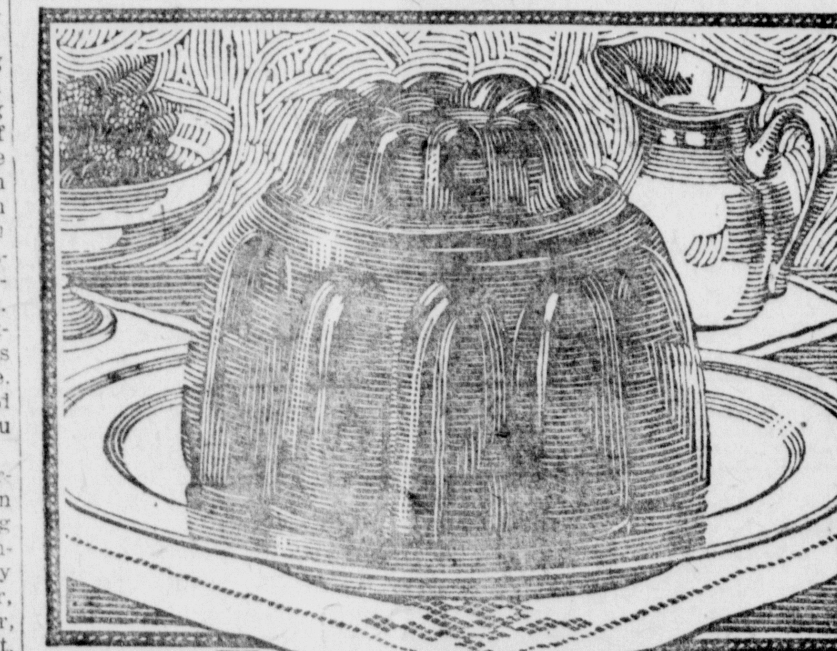

Now sift together one and three-quarter cups of pastry flour, two and one-half teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Add this to the mixing bowl alternately with one-half cup of cold, sweet milk. Divide the batter. To one-half of it (in another bowl) add one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, one-eighth teaspoon of ginger, one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg and one-fourth teaspoon of ground cloves. This, as I said above, will darken the batter slightly—but not as strongly as melted chocolate. This is the stage at which to add the square of chocolate if you wish to.

Butter a loaf-cake pan measuring about five by nine inches on the bottom, and having flaring sides about two and one-half inches high. Indeed, I generally line my pan with thin wax paper, and then butter or oil the paper, before scraping my batter into it. Even the best cooks sometimes regret that they did not line their pan with wax paper, which prevents the cake sticking to the pan-bottom—so a beginner-cook had best take warning from this suggestion.

ON
Greene County History

SHEEP

No domestic animal raised in Greene County has had a more variable history than the sheep.

The pioneer family had to raise at least two things—a patch of flax and a flock of sheep; from the former came the linen, from the sheep the wool, from the combination the linsey-woolsey.

Few families in the county were without a spinning wheel and probably there was no woman in the county unable to take the raw wool and make it into cloth.

One of the first industries in the county was the woolen-mill. Some mills only carded and filled, others gave complete attention to weaving and spinning. The so-called Xenia factory performed all four operations.

It is difficult to trace the various woolen mills in the county since most of them disappeared before the Civil War. In 1826 a summary showed nine in operation, namely: The Xenia factory, near Xenia; Oldtown, McFarland's factory on Massies Creek; Brad's factory; Smith's factory on Beaver Creek; Sayer and Wells, on Little Miami River; Laughhead's factory on Yellow Springs branch; Bonner's factory near Xenia; Pelham's factory in Xenia. Last factory in operation was the Barrett-owned one near Spring Valley. It closed down in 1910.

First statistics on sheep show there were more than 29,529 in the county in 1840, which increased to 47,898 in 1850 with a reported wool clip of 1,206,3 pounds. High tide of the sheep industry was reached in 1876. It has shown a steady decrease ever since.

The Merino was the first sheep brought into the county and for many years was the only breed. There was an early effort to improve the breed of sheep. Later the Delaine Merinos and Ramboulllets were introduced. Still later came the various breeds to be found in the county today.

THE VALUE OF TRIFLES

Every day we live with things of marvelous value—not realizing or appreciating their worth. Most of these things are small in themselves.

It seems to be the habit of most people to let the most interesting, most beautiful, and the most fascinating things of human life just pass along. Like the tiny flower that waits so patiently in the valleys for someone to come along and love it—or even to notice it.

The trifles of courtesy, thoughtfulness, and consideration, to many appear old fashioned and trite.

But it is by rightly appraising these very things in their value to human life, character and happiness that we learn the true and beautiful value of friendship itself.

Trifles of love and thoughtfulness are what make up the great spots in this universe.

There are plenty of people who go out of their way to do something spectacular, something that will attract attention to their deeds, but to do the out-of-the-way thing, and just be happy and satisfied over doing it is quite the rare thing.

Trifles that spring from the heart to be poured into someone's life, are like rare gems.

Simple gifts, remembrances, sacrifices that are genuine—these things renovate the heart and cleanse it for the larger efforts of life.

The little things, trifles, are the privilege of all.

NO WOMAN CAN KEEP

Without Good Health

MRS. FRANK DINDORE

Four Walls Can Make a House, but it takes a Woman to Make a Home

To be a successful homemaker, a woman must guard her health. When mother is not well, the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, as these women did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lancaster, Ohio.—"For ten years after my marriage, I had poor health.

I was on a visit to my sister in Michigan, and she had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Her husband got me a bottle and I took it and felt so much better that I got a second one. Now, whenever I feel run-down I take the Vegetable Compound and soon feel all right again. I have had three little girls in the last six years and do all my housework, sewing, washing, and ironing. My time is pretty well taken up, but I will answer any letters I receive."—Mrs. FRANK DINDORE, 823 Pierce Avenue, Lancaster, Ohio.

Sturgis, Michigan.—"I am very thankful for what your medicine has done for me and have recommended it to others. I took it to give me strength before my baby was born. I would have to stop work and lie down sometimes all the afternoon. I felt as if I did not care whether anything was done or not. I got tired off so easily. One day I found a little book on my porch and that night I showed it to my husband and he went down town and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has helped me so much that I was soon able to do my work, and when my baby was born, my nurse, Mrs. Forbes, said it was the easiest birth she had ever attended. I will be more than pleased if I am helping someone else by giving my testimonial."—Mrs. EDWARD PEBBLES, 208 Surprise Ave., Sturgis, Michigan.

Ford
Highest in Quality
Lowest in Price

Ford cars are built throughout of the finest materials that can be produced. The very best steels available are used in Ford manufacture. The plate glass for windshields and windows is as perfect as can be made. Upholstery material contains a larger percentage of wool than is ordinarily specified—even for much higher priced cars. The basic features of Ford design have never been improved upon by any manufacturer.

No other car offers greater dependability. The Ford car has won the favor of millions of users, under every conceivable motoring condition. Its convenience is known and appreciated the world over; its performance is taken for granted.

Such quality is possible at Ford prices because every operation, from mining of ore to final assembly, is under direct control of the Ford Motor Company.

Iron is taken from Ford mines in Michigan; coal from the Company's mines in Kentucky and West Virginia. Glass comes from Ford glass plants; wood from the Ford timber tracts in the North. Raw materials and finished products are carried over the Company's own transportation routes; coke ovens, blast furnaces, a steel mill, foundries and saw mills—all are part of this complete organization. There are even salvage plants, paper mill, cement plant, etc., to transform waste materials into useful by-products.

In this way every possible economy is effected. Under no other circumstances could Ford quality be had at Ford prices.

FANNING WITH ARRELL

NEW YORK, April 21.—Several major league managers are entertaining doubts about the benefit of spring exhibition games between major league clubs.

From a business point of view, inter-league exhibition games are practical because a large part of the heavy expenses of a training camp can be defrayed by the gate money from the exhibition games but the psychological effect upon the players may cost just as much in actual money.

Players do not draw salary for playing in these exhibition games and they do not care to risk salary arms, legs or backs in unnecessary chances on uncertain playing fields. Many of them say the exhibition games amount to nothing and they don't care about results though no ball player likes to lose.

Take the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Robins for an example. When they started their spring series they were not taken too seriously as pennant possibilities but the Robins with a fine looking pitching staff, entertained first division hopes.

The Yankees got away to a flying start and murdered the best pitching Brooklyn had for four consecutive victories. The Yanks got the winning habit, gained faith in themselves and returned to New York with a club that looks like a pennant possibility. The Robins fell into a losing habit, lost heart, and there is no way to tell what effect it will have upon them if they don't get a good start in championship competition.

That spring series between the two clubs may turn out to have been the makings of the Yankees and it might be that it will be the ruin of the Robins.

Bucky Harris, the shrewd young manager of the Washington Senators, was discussing the benefits of exhibition games one night in his hotel in Tampa.

"Personally," he said, "I don't attach too much importance to exhibition games because they are staged primarily for the purpose of getting practice. When I first started managing this club I wanted to win every game but I've grown out of a lot of that college stuff now. But as a manager of a club and not as one of the players I realize that the games are very important for the moral effect upon the club as a whole. It is necessary to cultivate the winning habit and when the players start to losing faith in themselves, it is hard to recover.

"For that reason I felt fortunate in being able to arrange several of these exhibition tours with the New York Giants because they gave us real competition. It isn't well to knock over a bunch of setups because the players know that it means nothing but to beat a good club means everything. I didn't want to win every game from the Giants, because I knew that we couldn't do it but I did want the boys to make a good showing and they have done it so far. We don't grow when we beat the Giants and we don't cry when they down us."

Some of the lower ranking major league clubs are rushed along in their training primarily for the purpose of beating opposition in the spring games and drawing good gate money. One National League team is said to have made all its training expenses for two seasons by pointing for the exhibition games even if it did injure the condition of the team for the championship race.

Old Dog Won't Learn New Tricks? Well, Mitchell Has New Delivery

They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks. Maybe not. But apparently pitchers are in a different class. For Clarence Mitchell, veteran and much shifted hurler now with the Phillies, is displaying for the first time a nifty knuckle ball, which bids fair to make him a more valuable hurler. He started experimenting with it last fall and is now ready to use it, he avers.

The Theatre

"Her performance (however mercurial you may be in remembering some of her past performances) is amazing, the outstanding piece of acting of the season.

Thus does the New Yorker write about our own Alice Brady, one-time star of the silver sheet, long missed from the shadow haunt; and now turned up in William Hurlbert's "Bride of the Lamb," playing at the Greenwich Village Theater in New York. And doing it well.

"Bride of the Lamb" is a tragedy done on religion, with a preacher in the lead; role such as Somerset Maugham gave us in "Rain." It is a cynical piece, dealing with the crude romance of a tent-revivalist and a housewife bound to convention by a drunken husband and a snuffling child.

Critics say Hurlbert might have done a great thing by making a comedy of the piece. Instead he would it up with madness and murder as the only sequel to a sordid whirlpool of life, he had created.

Excellent acting has gone into the effort, including that of Miss Brady. Several years ago her rather capable father set out to make her a movie luminary, which he did. Then she crossed with him through an unfortunate marriage. Her return to public life found her following the footlights instead of the Kleig light path. Maybe she has lived a lot since the studio days and if she has, she would be the finer actress for it. As we remember her screen performances, there was room for improvement.

Yet Miss Brady had many fans. Not the least of these was the late Dr. Ida Woolsey of Xenia, with whom she carried on a regular correspondence. In fact Dr. Woolsey visited the actress in New York. Before her death, she prized gifts from Miss Brady that were tokens

MASONS WILL ERECT $55,000 ANNEX TO TEMPLE BUILDING

This will be accepted soon and contracts let for construction of a $55,000 annex to the Roberts villa, acquired by Xenia Masons at their new Masonic Temple, it was announced Wednesday.

Ground is expected to be broken for the work about May 1 and it is planned to complete the project by next fall.

Plans for the building have been drawn up by Harley W. Owens, Xenia architect and building supervisor, but specifications have not been completed.

Annex to be built will be a two-story extension connecting the villa on the east side. It will be constructed of steel, brick and cement. Dimensions are 75 feet by 80 feet.

When completed it will contain a dining room or banquet hall which may also be used as an auditorium, on the first floor. Second floor will be devoted to lodge purposes. Property rooms and other smaller compartments will also be included on the ground floor.

DO YOU LIKE MYSTERY TALES? THEN YOU ARE RATED NORMAL HUMAN BEING

From the small boy who shakes and shivers in the solitude of his bedroom with a "thriller" before his popping eyes, to the dignified business man who seeks recreation and diversion in the scientific detective story, everybody seems to love a tale of mystery.

Mystery tales have a lure for all classes but the type of mystery must fit the age of the reader. The small youngster, it is found, likes quite natural fascination for most people. Hence the great crowds that attend famous criminal trials.

"The criminal is the abnormal creature. The normal man, the average, home-keeping, hard-working man or woman finds in reading of the ceaseless contest between the law and the law-breaker some compensation for lack of adventure in his own life. The average reader sits safely and decently and honestly by his own fireside in the evening, opens the pages of a mystery story and sets forth into the unknown.

"Mystery stories take us back to the wonderment of childhood. They take us out of ourselves and our work-a-day world. They make us forget our surroundings and enthrall us by happenings in a universe that we don't know. In this way they are a supreme entertainment."

the blood-and-thunder type with hair-raising episodes in each chapter. Grownups read detective novels regularly according to libraries and book store employees, but the plot must be not easily understood, and the less bloodshed the greater the interest.

Libraries find this type of fiction ranks high in point of popularity among patrons. In one library in Chicago it has been found necessary to make a separate file of these volumes, and although this list does not include all stories that may be so classified, it contains nearly 500 books.

Worn look of the pages of mystery volumes at the local library themselves to the popular love of mystery stories.

Many famous men including several presidents have found a source of entertainment in detective novels. The analytical mind of the big business man seem to find particularly strong appeal in this type of fiction.

However, even those of lesser talents and accomplishments are attracted. Adventure, thrills and particularly suspense of the mystery novel are its chief characteristics and the secret of its appeal.

Modern book and magazine writers today are leaning more and more strongly to detective or mystery stories. They hold the interest, are usually not dry reading and challenge the reader's intellect. Everyone it is said, has a detective instinct.

Mrs. Marie Belloc-Lowndes, herself a famous writer of such tales, has explained the psychology of the mystery story's appeal. "They touch the most acute of what one might call the mental nerves," she said. "The never of fear. They give you what the French call a 'frisson'—a shudder—a thrill, that no other form of fiction gives.

"In the mystery story a feeling of wonderment on the part of the reader grows as the story grows. The reader is held in breathless suspense to the end. He cannot figure how the story is to develop and how it is to finish. And this is especially true of crime stories. Crime exercises a peculiar but

HERO DIES IN FALL
FAIRMONT, W. Va., Apr. 21.—John H. McNeil, who saved twenty-one lives in the Jamison mine disaster last January, was dead at his home here today, the result of a fall down a flight of stairs. McNeil was the hero of the Jamison mine disaster. Digging coal underground with fellow workmen when a blast shattered the mine, the valiant miner herded his frantic comrades into an ante-chamber and calmly erected a barricade to protect them from gases. When pure air had been forced into the shaft, McNeil led the men to safety.

GIRLS, WHITEN SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any drugist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared. adv.

Hair Dry, Brittle from Constant Waving, Curling

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle and full of dandruff. Then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

—Save girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

AGRICULTURE BOARD PLANNING NEW FAIR

COLUMBUS, O., April 21.—The state board of agriculture convened here today to work out plans for the 1926 state fair.

Considerable significance was attached to the meeting due to the presence of both Governor Donahay and State Director of Agriculture Charles V. Truax.

The governor and Truax said they would not discuss the appointment of a new fair manager, succeeding G. R. Lewis, who was dismissed at the height of the recent investigation of the agricultural division.

Prior to the session, however, Gov. Donahay said Truax and members of the board of agriculture will have charge of the fair.

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture

If poison has been swallowed it is necessary to empty the stomach immediately. Emetics should be given repeatedly, either of mustard, common salt or powdered alum, in the proportion of a teaspoonful of any to a glass of water. If away from any house, with nothing but cold water available this should be used freely, inducing the vomiting by tickling the throat with a finger. Remember that it is imperative to empty and cleanse the stomach thoroughly.

After this, give white of egg very freely, or, if not at hand, milk instead. Meanwhile full hot enemas should be given, one after the other. If the patient seems drowsy and the heart action seems to diminish, hot fomentations should be placed over the heart and changed frequently, with heat also applied to the feet. In corrosive sublimated cases or other mercurial poisonings it will be well to give one or two full retained rectal irrigations of an albuminous liquid, such as milk with white of egg beaten up in it.

After continuous vomiting and thorough rectal irrigation, full hot baths (106 degrees Fahrenheit) will be valuable for eliminating the poisons absorbed into the circulation, combined with rubbing. Meanwhile the patient should continue to drink large quantities of milk, or water containing milk or white of egg beaten up. There are some special antidotes for various specific poisons, but the above treatment will always be successful, especially when one does not know the nature of the poison. Hot air baths are also effective as eliminants in such cases and hot blanket packs; a woolen blanket wrung out of water as hot as the patient can bear should be used. Great care must be exercised to not allow it to continue long enough to become exhausting and depressing. The hot blanket pack may be substituted for the hot tub bath if the latter is not convenient or possible. These should be followed by quick cold ablutions.

Opium and other poisons not swallowed should have similar constitutional treatment, including the hot enemas, though not the emetics. Copious drinking of hot water, if convenient. If unconscious, alternate hot and cold to spine, hot fomentations to heart and feet, or if convenient, full hot baths.

A SHOPPING GUIDE FOR THE BARGAIN HUNTER

"Not Possible To Classify"
By Mack Sauer

A few jottings of the day by Samuel Pepys, Jr.: Up when the clock went six being a great pain about not having a car, when all the world rides, being almost ashamed to walk hither and yon, but could not come to any resolution what to do, that is whether to drive a mortgaged bus or have none. My wife up singing, a howling success, I told her, which brought a slap on the ears.

With great mirth to me, read H. L. Mencken's thrusts at Kiwanis and Rotary, and about Christ being the first Rotarian, and so chuckled the morning away. Great talk among fanatics about there being no summer, and, too, among some that the end of the world is at hand, and that the day is not far off. Against which, whenever it shall be, if ever, God fit us all.

To church, where heard a good sermon, and mighty story to hear a man next to me sing out of tune, and to see his wife poke him in the ribs with her elbow, so that he refused to sing another word, a resolve I made many months ago and which I plan to keep. Good psalms and prayers and good fellowship, too.

To dine at an eating house, where disgusted with the coffee it being worse to take than the medicine Doctor DeHaven gave me, so my dinner spoiled, for dinner without coffee is to me like church without music. Paid the reckoning without words, but thought to give a tongue-lashing about the eats and should have done so, Heaven knows.

Came a poor relative to spend the evening with us, and mighty inquisitive he was to learn from wife when I was in the basement fixing the furnace, whether or not I have a bank account, his purpose being to borrow some money, but she gave him no hopes, telling him of our being in the poorest straits in our career.

Late read some verses about "to be or not to be" and more from Mencken's pen, as able a writer as there is in the world today. methinks. And so late to bed with prayers.

BAH! BAH! BAH!

The menu worries us a lot.
Shall we eat beef or mutton?
But the biggest question at our house
Is "Where's my collar button?"

I might add that when in Rome, burn Roman candles, wear a black shirt and do what Mussolini tells you to do. When in Xenia, read The Gazette and phone your classified ads to The Gazette. Just phone 111.

ONE DEAD, 2 MISSING IN FOREST FIRE

POLICEMAN KILLED IN PISTOL BATTLE WITH STORE ROBBER

Bandit Also Slain In
Duel—Detective
Wounded

CLEVELAND, O., April 21.—Guns of valiant peace officers and of the underworld spat fire here during the night and today. Patrolman William Borgman, Joseph Fligher, a bandit, were dead and Detective Harry J. Hotchkiss was in a hospital.

"Stick 'em up," the desperado ordered a cigar store clerk and get back there again and get back there again against the wall."

Hotchkiss leaped from behind the partition with drawn revolver. Fligher fired and missed. Hotchkiss fired and missed. The store clerk ran into the street, shouting: "Police! Help! Police!"

Borgman, who had heard the shots appeared on the scene. Borgman sounded a police riot call and leaped into the fray. Fighting his way into the store through a milling crowd that quickly gathered, Borgman picked his mark and began firing. Fligher felled Hotchkiss with a bullet in the leg. A dozen more shots were exchanged then Borgman and Fligher both found their marks and dropped simultaneously fatally wounded. Today Borgman's name was enrolled among Cleveland's list of heroes. His badge, No. 137, was placed in a case with those of other officers who have fallen in the line of duty, there to be commemorated.

Fligher was identified as the bandit who robbed two other United Cigar stores here two weeks ago. Authorities discounted the story that Hotchkiss was the officer who killed the bandit. Hotchkiss was lying on the floor, writhing in pain when Borgman burst into the place and confronted Fligher, they said.

In the duel that followed both fatally wounded each other simultaneously officials claim.

PEKING IS WITHOUT GOVERNMENT NOW

PEKING, April 21.—Peking is without a government today following the flight of former President Tuan Chi Jui to Tien Tsin, and there are indications that the situation will be further aggravated by a clash between the Manchurian troops of Marshal Chang Tso Lin and the army of Wei Pei Fu.

Foreign Minister Hue Wai Teh, who nominally is acting premier, informed the foreign diplomats today that he was concerned only with foreign affairs, thus leaving the government without a responsible head.

Removal of troops from the capital has relieved the situation somewhat within the walls, but the general aspect is chaotic.

Judge Marshall Tells Masonic Club Ills Of Poor Citizenship—Speculation and Divorce Two Evils To Be Combated, He Says

Defining the term "citizen," Judge Carrington T. Marshall, Columbus, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, gave citizenship a searching arraignment declaring "modern indifference of citizens to government is monumental, has a degrading effect, is the committing of an economic blunder and exerts a cheapening effect in the moral sense of the average person," in an address at an open meeting of the Xenia Masonic Club at the Masonic Temple, Tuesday night.

"The United States, for the past ten or fifteen years has been engulfed in a wave of social and industrial unrest. A wave of crime and radicalism has the world in its grasp. America is no exception—is, in fact, the greatest offender today."

"Americans are making a closer study of conditions than ever before, commencing them by organization of clubs, not for pleasure but for the purpose of acquiring a better view of citizenship."

"We think little of law and government in times of peace and prosperity but in times of stress or war or crime it is carefully weighed and measured."

CRABBE COMPLAINS AGAINST MAYOR FOR GAMBLING ON RACES

COLUMBUS, O., April 21.—A formal complaint demanding the removal of Mayor John C. Felton of Grove City, near here on charges of "permitting gambling" at Beulah Park race track, was filed with Gov. Donahoe today by Attorney General Crabbe.

In demanding the removal of Felton, Crabbe cited the operation of booths at Beulah Park, where he charged, par mutual machines were being used.

"These booths are being operated within the corporate limits of Grove City and I demand that Felton be removed as mayor," Crabbe's complaint to the governor said.

SAY DETECTIVE WAS SLAYER

LYONS TAKES STAND
AT TRIAL; ACCUSES
OFFICER OF CHARGE

Case Expected To Reach
Jury On Thursday

NORWALK, O., April 21.—"Morgan fired the shot that killed McGrath," James Lyons, Havana desperado on trial for the murder of Frank McGrath, American Railway Express Company declared today, testifying in his own behalf.

The Morgan Lyons referred to was James Morgan, another ex-convict company detective who accompanied McGrath to the Lyons home the day McGrath was slain. The officers had gone to the Lyons home to arrest James and his brother, Leonard, on charges of robbery.

A hush settled over the court room as the alleged killer calmly walked to the witness stand in response to the call of his attorney, Melvin O. Rettig.

"I was backing McGrath, Morgan and the rest of them down stairs (at the Lyons home) when a man at the bottom of the stairway fired over the railing," Lyons testified, his face bearing no signs of emotion or stress. "McGrath was above us. The bullet hit him and he fell down the stairs."

Lyons said the man firing the gun was Morgan, then he changed his statement, saying he "believed the man was Morgan."

Under a severe grilling by Assistant Prosecutor Frank Carpenter, Lyons admitted shooting McGrath in the neck. McGrath died from a bullet in the heart.

"I fired only three shots," the alleged killer declared. "One at McGrath, one at the man at the bottom of the stairway and one into the door of the room in which Adelman (Deputy Sheriff Frank Adelman) had gone."

The state rested its case yesterday and it is now expected taking testimony may be completed this afternoon, with the possibility the case will go to the jury late tomorrow.

Lyons said he had seven reasons for surrendering ten days ago, seventeen hours after his escape from the county jail.

"But I won't tell any of them," he said. "I'll leave everybody guess for themselves. My friends helped me get back."

He refused to say who his friends were.

REBUILDING OF ETERNAL CITY STARTS ON ITS ANNIVERSARY

At ten a. m. the celebration of Eternal day at the Campi Doglio began.

Today was really three days made into one, for, in addition to being Rome's birthday, it was Colonial day and the Italian labor day. Mussolini chose to move labor internationally, to a day of purely nationalistic suggestions.

The holiday was complete. All trades except those engaged on public utilities stopped work, stores and schools were closed and the celebration extended throughout Italy.

It was believed the baby will be named Mary, for the queen. Sheas of congratulatory messages began pouring into the home before dawn. The baby was born at 2:40 a. m. and the news was immediately telephoned to King George and Queen Mary.

The baby is the third royal grandchild and the first granddaughter and she has the distinction of being third in line for succession to the throne. If the Prince should die without issue the new-comer's father, the Duke of York would become king, and his daughter would be formally recognized as heir presumptive until such time as a boy should be born into the family.

Just three years ago tomorrow the Duchess was married, the ceremony taking place with gorgeous pageantry in Westminster Abbey. The baby was born in the room occupied by her mother long before it was suspected that she would some day be a royal bride and perhaps the mother of a queen.

The royal baby was saluted with forty-one guns by the Hyde Park batteries at 10 a. m. and at noon an identical salute roared from the guns of the tower of London. Princess Mary was the first royal visitor to be received by the little princess, and she was soon followed by the Lady Mayoress of London. The Duke of York appeared briefly at a window with a smile for the crowd outside.

Only the Queen, Princess Mary and the Duchess of York will take precedence over the new-comer until the Prince of Wales marries—if he does. The Duke is thirty-one years old, the second son of their majesties and next in line for the throne after Wales.

EXPLOSION WRECKS YOUNGSTOWN STORE ROOMS; LOSS $75,000

Ammonia Tank Lets Go
In Business District

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 21.—An ammonia tank explosion wrecked the Cinquegrano and Muscusi meat market here today and partially razed the People's Furniture Company building adjoining causing damage conservatively estimated at $75,000. No one was reported injured.

Fire followed the blast transforming the twisted masses of timbers and steel into a raging inferno. Great clouds of smoke swirled about the debris as fire apparatus, responding to a general alarm came from all parts of the city.

After three hours of heroic work firemen subdued the blaze which for a time menaced an entire block.

The rear of the Antler Hotel and walls of a grocery store adjacent to the two buildings, collapsed as the fire ate its way through the wreckage.

The major loss was sustained by the furniture company which estimated its damage at $50,000.

Police immediately began an investigation of the explosion, believing they said, that some one had tampered with the ammonia cylinder.

CINCINNATI, April 21.—Department of Justice headquarters for the Southern Ohio District now maintained here, will be moved to Columbus, according to a dispatch from Washington today.

The despatch was confirmed by local federal authorities, one of whom said:

"A more central location of Columbus and better facilities, make Columbus a more desirable location."

It was not made known whether the federal district attorney's office also will be moved.

BROKEN HEART WAS PARTIAL CAUSE OF DEATH OF FIGHTER

Failure To Win Is Said
To Have Been Responsible

MILWAUKEE, April 21.—A broken heart because he failed to win was no less responsible for the death of Sencio Maldez, 21-year-old Filipino boxer, than the fact an artery in his brain had been burst according to Sencio's trainer, "Whitey" Ekwert.

"The boy had a big heart," Ekwert said. "And his big heart was set upon becoming a champion. Maybe Taylor's pounding caused his death—but I believe he might have overcome his injuries if he had won the fight."

Sencio died yesterday as a result of a hemorrhage he suffered in a boxing exhibition with Bud Taylor the "Terrible Terror."

No action is to be taken against Bud Taylor, according to District Attorney Eugene Wingert, who explained that boxing matches are legal in Wisconsin and that all the rules of the game had been followed.

Sencio had been pronounced physically fit by a physician shortly before the bout.

BRIAND SAYS DEBT PLAN IS EFFECTED

PARIS, April 21.—It was learned authoritatively that Premier Briand today informed the senate committee of foreign affairs, an accord had been reached for settlement of the $4,200,000,000 French debt to the United States.

He reported Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and the French Ambassador Henri Beniger had found agreement in Washington but emphasized their work must be ratified by the American Debt Commission.

Raymond Poincare and former President Millerand protested against abandonment of the safeguard clause and demanded it be inserted in any agreement.

WHEELER DEMANDS ADDITIONAL TIME TO PRESENT DRY CASE

Reed Answers With
Charge Committee
Is Unfair

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Drys and wets re-opened their clash over the question of fairness and procedure of the senate prohibition committee at the hearing drew near a close today.

Wayne B. Wheeler, chief counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, demanded the dry be allotted three additional hours because Senator Jim Reed, Democrat, Missouri wet, had taken up that much time in cross-examining their witnesses.

Reed had already taken to the floor of the senate charges that the dry members of the committee were treating him unfairly in forcing hearings to proceed yesterday afternoon despite his wish for an adjournment.

Julian Codman, wet prosecutor, protested against the action of Wheeler and said the dry members of the committee had taken up such wet time in cross-examination of dry witnesses. Wheeler also demanded the dry be permitted to make concluding arguments instead of the wets.

The committee took both arguments under advisement. Oliver W. Stewart, of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron Foundation of Indiana, pleaded with the committee to ignore any laws designed to weaken the Volstead act.

The first farmer to appear before the committee was S. L. Strivings, of Castle, N. Y., representative of the New York State Grange.

"We are a farm folk who stand for the best in rural life," Strivings said. "We register disapproval against any plan to amend the Volstead act in any way."

MINISTER TO FACE CHARGES OF CHURCH

CROTON, O., April 21.—Charges of "conduct unbecoming a minister of the gospel" were preferred against the Rev. James A. Trod, deposed pastor of the Eastwood Congregational Church, Columbus, when the Central Ohio Association of Congregational churches convened here today.

A communication containing the allegations was presented by the Rev. John A. Schmink of Columbus, who accused the Rev. Trod of making a false affidavit when he obtained a license to wed a former Oberlin college co-ed.

Rev. Schmink coupled his charges with a demand that Trod be unfrocked. The complaint was referred to a committee appointed by the association administrative board and a report, unfrocking the minister, was expected some time this afternoon.

Rev. Trod, in obtaining the marriage license was said to have made an affidavit that he had never been married before. Evidence obtained by Schmink revealed he had been married twice, his first wife having died and his second having divorced him.

Trod said he would fight the charges although he was not present when the association met today.

ENDORSE WILLIS

If Weisbord Quits Labor
Federation To Take
Case

PASSAIC, N. J., April 21.—Prospects for settlement of the New Jersey textile mills strike, now in its thirteenth week, appeared today to rest upon the willingness of Albert Weisbord to withdraw from his post of leadership.

Should Weisbord, the young Harvard graduate and alleged communist who organized the strike, leave the United Front Committee, it was understood the strike will be put into the hands of the American Federation of Labor, which will unionize the mill employees and begin negotiations with the employers.

The United Front Committee has announced the strikers are eager to enter preliminary negotiations, and that Henry T. Hunt, New York lawyer, has been engaged to represent them.

Governor Moore, as one of the members of a committee of four, will probably take part in any attempt at mediation.

The mill owners have treated hesitantly Gov. Moore's offer of mediation.

VICTIM OVERTAKEN TRYING TO ESCAPE FLAMES IN JERSEY

Companions Are Not Found—Villages Are
Imperilled

TOMS RIVER, N. J., April 21.—One dead and two missing stood as the toll of a fierce forest fire that was spending itself today between Double Trouble and Pinewald, near here.

Harry Orsley, 65, was burned to death when the flames overtook him after he had abandoned his motor truck in the burning area. His charred body was found near Pinewald.

Two other men were riding in the truck with Orsley, but no trace of them has been found.

Aided by a fifty-five mile wind, the fire swept over an irregular horseshoe, thirty miles long, imperiling many small villages in Ocean County. Estimates place the burned area at 100,000 acres.

Fire fighters battled the blaze throughout the night while the New York-Atlantic Highway was lined with automobiles as the occupants watched the thrilling spectacle.

The forest was largely scrub pine which burned fiercely.

EIGHTY YEAR OLD SOLDIER FEARS HE MAY BE RETIRED ON PENSION AT LAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Apr. 21.—We're the oldest soldiers. Tell, I don't know what I'd do if I was kicked out of the army now," declared James H. (Pop) Hanson, Civil War veteran and 80-year-old field clerk attached to a quartermaster corps at Fort Mason here.

"I went into the army when I was fourteen and I've been at it ever since—that's sixty-seven years, isn't it? I'm sort of used to this army life now."

Pop is worrying a bit about a new pension bill which may let him out.

"There's a bill before Congress now or something about retiring old-timers. If the bill passes, well, I guess I'd have to build a little house near here somewhere and stick around anyway."

"They can't put me out now because the quartermaster corps isn't on the pension list."

Johnson fought in the Civil War, enlisted and fought through the Indian uprisings. He was in service during the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection and the Boxer campaign. He transferred to the quartermaster department here in 1906. During the World War he was found physically fit for service overseas but he never got away from Fort Mason.

"Retire from the army? I should say not," he replied when he was asked why he didn't quit service voluntarily. "There are several of us old fellows doing duty. There is Nat Foyntz, 80 years old, at Boston, and there is a fellow named Howard P. Snyder who is somewhere around 80.

CLERK FINED FOR CIGARETTE SALE TO PUPIL OF HOME

O. E. Storer, clerk at the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. depot restaurant, was fined $25 and costs by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Tuesday afternoon when he pleaded guilty to a charge of selling cigarettes to a minor.

Storer was haled into court on an affidavit filed by Major O. H. Cornwell, of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, specifically charging him with selling two packages of cigarettes to Farrel Council, sixteen-year-old ward of the institution.

Judge Wright declared Home children have made a practice of purchasing cigarettes for Storer, producing notes purporting to be signed by some individual of age. Storer admitted he was without knowledge or was unacquainted with persons whose names appeared on the notes, making him technically guilty of violating the law.

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi Admires The Robe De Style

BY J. V. JAY

Fashions appear to be filling out. (A thing most people struggle to keep their figures from doing.) Mitzi is admiring an evening dress here, with a tight tulle bolero effect which ends at a wide hip line. The skirt is very full over an underskirt.

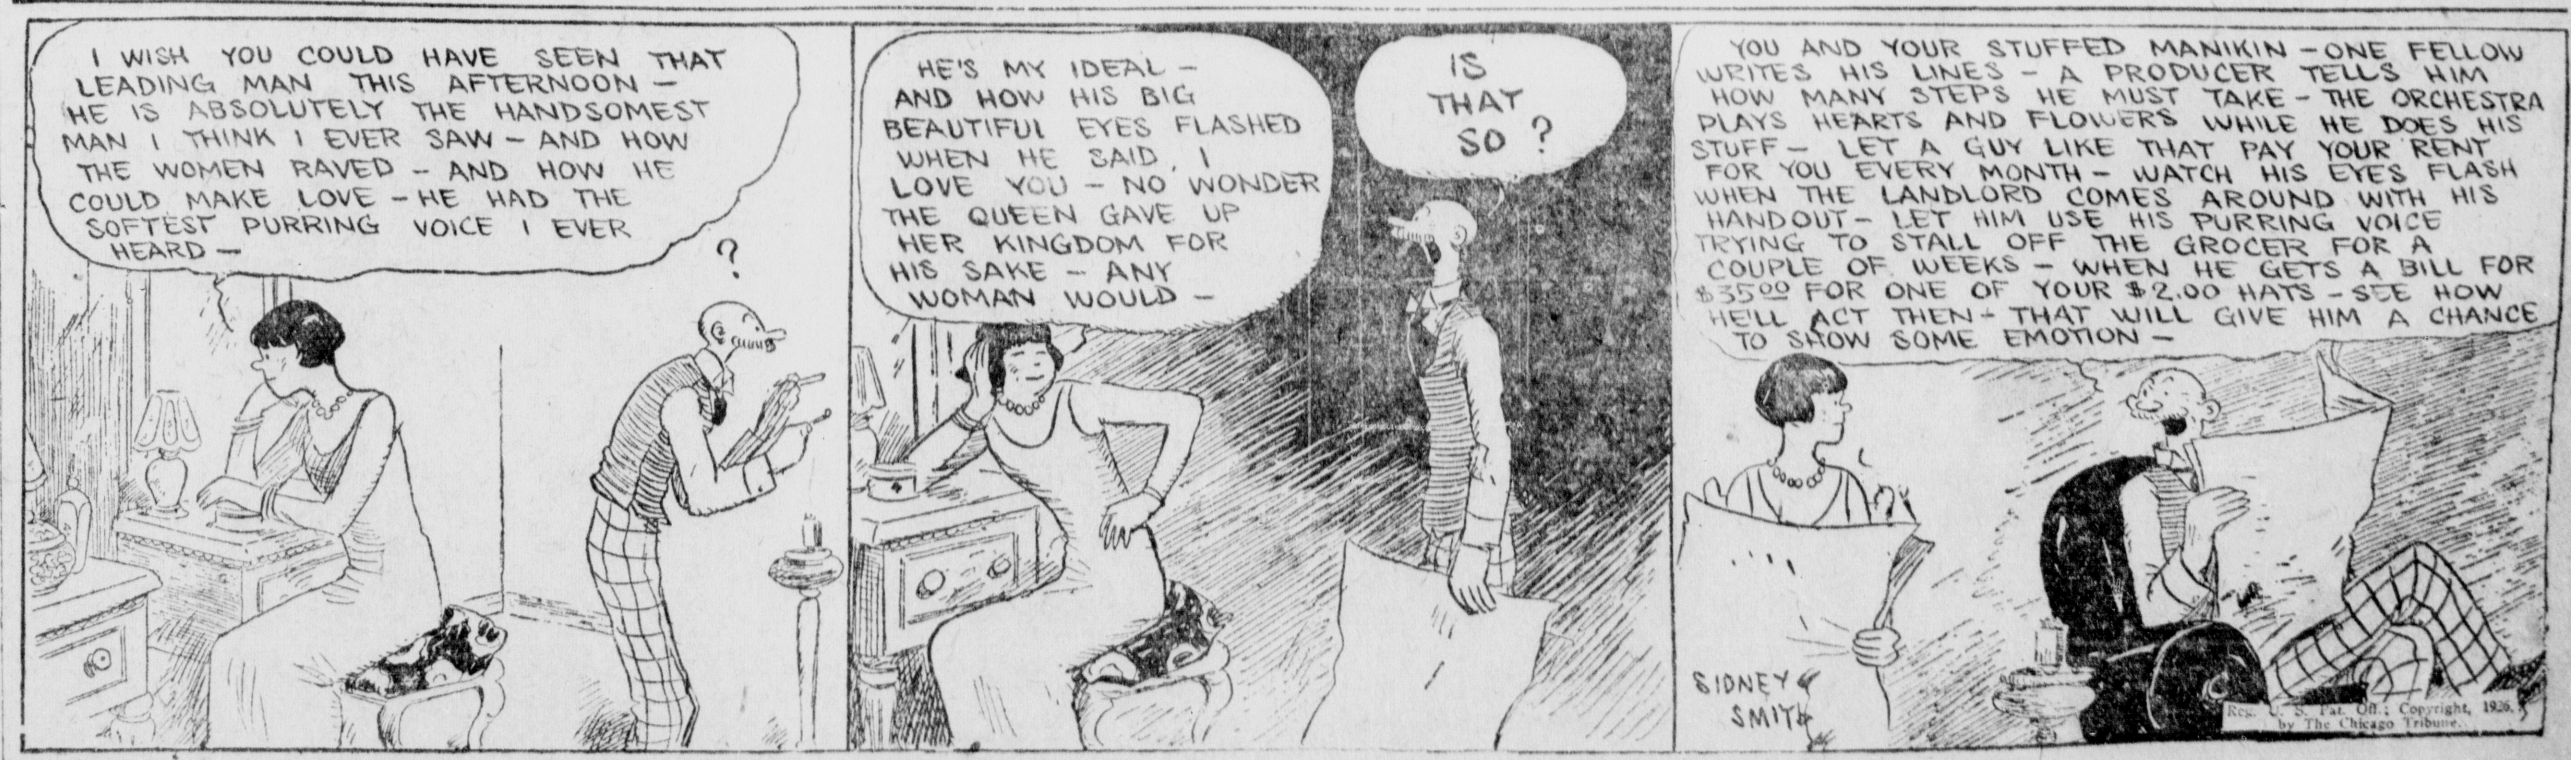

But one can have infinite choice among the new robes de style, for they have become very popular. The figure at the left shows the style for scallops and the full skirted mode. On the right, a dress of taffeta showing the wide, wide skirt trimmed with frilled taffeta.

As this is the evening gown Mitzi selects. It's lace, which is one reason for its smartness. It has a bolero effect, an uneven hem, a flaring skirt, and at almost normal waistline, which are other new real sons in its favor. Mitzi, however, keeps her silhouette tall and slender.

MEDICINAL VALUE OF SILENCE

IN a recent issue of The London Times an English physician complains of the new-racking strain of continuous and excessive noise in the world's metropolis and emphasizes the medicinal value, so to speak, of silence. His description of conditions in London and their effect upon the human system might apply to any large city in this country. There seems to be some danger of our losing the faculty of rest, he declares, and yet "silence is becoming one of the most important of modern medicines." This explains why physicians find it essential in many cases to get their "run-down" patients away to places where at least a measure of silence can be obtained.

One palliative for business men, he says, is the use of motor cars which enables them more quickly to get out of the din of the city, and makes it possible for them to live in suburbs at least partially exempt from the noises which assail them during working hours. The English have always been known for their addiction to week-ends. The custom is growing in the United States, but we are so strenuous in our sports and pleasures that it is doubtful if we derive the same degree of benefit therefrom as do our cousins across the sea. However, change of scene as well as of activities and noises, we are told, are beneficial, even if they last but a day or two. Perhaps it would be better for all of us if, instead of crowding the traditional two week's vacation with continuous and unusual exertions, we took our rests and silences in homeopathic doses.

SENSITIVE TO SUPPLY AND DEMAND

IN law industries can the working of the supply and demand law be seen so regularly reflected in prices, as in petroleum products; the buyer of petroleum products at retail can almost determine the price of gasoline by watching current prices of crude petroleum, so quick and intimate is adjustment of price relations between them.

The relationship between crude oil and gasoline prices is as close as that between cream and butter. The price of the refined product is bound to rise in proportion to the increase in cost of crude supply.

BOOMERANG LAWS

GENERAL Pangalos, Greek dictator, some months ago issued a decree forbidding the wearing of skirts higher than thirteen inches from the ground and immediately the calf-length skirt gave way to the knee-length skirt in popularity among the modern daughters of Venus.

For a time the police made an honest effort to enforce the law of their one-man government, but this armed threat that made Pangalos dictator was unable to cover the knees of Greece. At first the women adopted an ingeniously designed skirt which permitted the wearer, upon the approach of a policeman, to lower it to the legal length, and then one feminine-of-personal liberty had herself arrested by wearing an abbreviated Paris creation in public. That was the end of Pangalos decree and was almost the end of his dictatorship.

From the experience of the dictator of the Greeks the governments of the world might well take a lesson. Apparently the Grecians are less concerned about the form of government they have than about the manner in which that government is administered. They seem content with the dictatorship as long as it does not interfere with the private affairs of the individual.

Too much zeal in enacting and enforcing laws has been the suicide of countless governments and in time will wreck the tyrannical administrations of Pangalos, Mussolini, the Russian soviet, and any other government which learns too late that, "That government governs best that governs least."

CHANGING BEAUTY

TIMES have changed! So have standards of beauty! What was once beauty isn't beauty now! Even Venus de Milo is declassé! Her prestige is of a past day. Her fame crumbles before the foreign and unsympathetic gaze of modernity. The Venus type isn't that of the modern American beauty.

Ned Wayburn, who helps pick and train the members of the chorus of a Broadway revue, has learned from his musical show experience that Venus would have a difficult time getting into a modern Broadway chorus. A comparison of her measurements with those of the stage beauties of today prove the marble breath of feminine perfection to be too buxom and otherwise excessively statuesque.

While Venus may no longer be a model of pulchritude in this country, she may still be the ideal of twentieth century Greek maidens. Beauty standards are neither universal nor eternal. Ravishing American beauties could not qualify in a beauty contest in Turkey, the Orient or South Africa. All races of men have the "eye for beauty," but they speak a babel of languages of beauty. The beautiful women must be tall in one country and short in another, rotund in some and slender in others, fair skinned in some and olive complexioned in others, fine featured in some and coarse featured in others.

What is true of beauty is true of all that mankind cherishes. The sensation of the automobile show of yesterday is a pitiful antique today. Changing styles of architecture quickly convert the show place into an eyesore. Only a year separate the "stunning" from the "scream" in feminine attire.

CANTERBURY BELLS

I stand and look—about today
And something plainly tells
The gardens are expecting May
And Canterbury Bells.

I cannot hear the slightest sound,
But somehow I can feel
A certain bustling underground
That's very near and real.

Strange mysteries are going on
Within the damp and gloom,
In worlds I cannot look upon
The roses plan to bloom.

But I can only guess their plans
And wait and watch them toil,
Convinced a greater work than
man's
Goes on below the soil.

The power of God I feel and see
In every bud that swells,
In blossoms on the apple tree
And Canterbury Bells.

MARBLE SPICE CAKE

A Reader Friend has written to ask for specific directions for making a good marble spice cake. My favorite marble spice cake has a very delicate "marbled" effect—a mere faint suggestion of the darker streaks running through the cake. But one square of melted, unsweetened chocolate, added to the dark batter, will deepen the color of the wavy marble-lines in the cake, if you care for a sharper contrast between white and dark.

Begin by creaming six tablespoons of butter in a mixing bowl, then adding one cupful of granulated sugar and blending well; also add three beaten (unseparated) eggs, and one teaspoon of vanilla.

Now sift together one and three-quarter cups of pastry flour, two and one-half teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Add this to the mixing bowl alternately with one-half cup of cold, sweet milk. Divide the batter. To one-half of it (in another bowl) add one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, one-eighth teaspoon of ginger, one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg and one-fourth teaspoon of ground cloves.

This, as I said above, will darken the batter slightly—but not as brownly as melted chocolate. This is the stage at which to add the square of chocolate if you wish to.

Butter a loaf-cake pan measuring about five by nine inches on the bottom, and having flaring sides about two and one-half inches high. Indeed, I generally line my pan with thin wax paper, and then butter or oil the paper before scraping my batter into it.

Even the best cooks sometimes regret that they did not line their pan with wax paper, which prevents the cake sticking to the pan-bottom—so a beginner-cook had best take warning from this suggestion.

Greene County History

SHEEP

No domestic animal raised in Greene County has had a more variable history than the sheep.

The pioneer family had to raise at least two things—a patch of flax and a flock of sheep; from the former came the linen, from the sheep the wool, from the combination the linsey-woolsey.

Few families in the county were without a spinning wheel and probably there was no woman in the county unable to take the raw wool and make it into cloth.

One of the first industries in the county was the woolen-mill. Some mills only carded and filled, others gave complete attention to weaving and spinning. The so-called Xenia factory performed all four operations.

It is difficult to trace the various woolen mills in the county since most of them disappeared before the Civil War. In 1826 a summary showed nine in operation, namely: The Xenia factory, near Xenia; Oldtown, McFarland's factory on Massies Creek; Bradford's factory; Smith's factory on Beaver Creek; Sayer and Wells, on Little Miami River; Laughead's factory on Yellow Springs branch; Bonner's factory near Xenia; Pelham's factory in Xenia. Last factory in operation was the Barrett-owned one near Spring Valley. It closed down in 1910.

First statistics on sheep show there were more than 29,529 in the county in 1840, which increased to 47,895 in 1850 with a reported wool clip of 1,200,000 pounds. High tide of the sheep industry was reached in 1876. It has shown a steady decrease ever since.

The Merino was the first sheep brought into the county and for many years was the only breed. There was an early effort to improve the breed of sheep. Later the Delaine Merinos and Ramboulllets were introduced. Still later came the various breeds to be found in the county today.

Today's Talk

THE VALUE OF TRIFLES

Every day we live with things of marvelous value—not realizing or appreciating their worth. Most of these things are small in themselves.

It seems to be the habit of most people to let the most interesting, most beautiful, and the most fascinating things of human life just pass along. Like the tiny flower that waits so patiently in the valleys for someone to come along and love it—or even to notice it.

The trifles of courtesy, thoughtfulness, and consideration, to many appear old fashioned and trite.

But it is by rightly appraising these very things in their value to human life, character and happiness that we learn the true and beautiful value of friendship itself.

Trifles of love and thoughtfulness are what make up the great spots in this universe.

There are plenty of people who go out of their way to do something spectacular, something that will attract attention to their deeds, but to do the out-of-the-way thing, and just be happy and satisfied over doing it is quite the rare thing.

Trifles that spring from the heart to be poured into someone's life, are like rare gems.

Simple gifts, remembrances, sacrifices that are genuine—these things renovate the heart and cleanse it for the larger efforts of life.

The little things, trifles, are the privilege of all.

NO WOMAN CAN KEEP HOUSE EFFICIENTLY

Without Good Health

MRS. FRANK DINDORE
823 PIERCE AVENUE, LANCASTER, OHIO

Four Walls Can Make a House, but it takes a Woman to Make a Home

To be a successful homemaker, a woman must guard her health. When mother is not well, the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, as these women did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lancaster, Ohio.—"For ten years after my marriage, I had poor health.

I was on a visit to my sister in Utica, Michigan, and she had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Her husband got me a bottle and I took it and felt so much better that I got a second one. Now, whenever I feel run-down I take the Vegetable Compound and soon feel all right again. I have had three little girls in the last six years and do all my housework, sewing, washing, and ironing. My time is pretty well taken up, but I will answer any letters I receive."—Mrs. FRANK DINDORE, 823 Pierce Avenue, Lancaster, Ohio.

Sturgis, Michigan.—"I am very thankful for what your medicine has done for me and have recommended it to others. I took it to give me strength before my baby was born. I would have to stop work and lie down sometimes all the afternoon. I felt as if I did not care whether anything was done or not. I got tired off so easily. One day I found a little book on my porch and that night I showed it to my husband and he went down town and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has helped me so much that I was soon able to do my work, and when my baby was born, my nurse, Mrs. Forbes, said it was the easiest birth she had ever attended. I will be more than pleased if I am helping someone else by giving my testimonial."—Mrs. EDWARD PERSTING, 208 Surprise Ave., Sturgis, Michigan.

Ford

Highest in Quality Lowest in Price

Ford cars are built throughout of the finest materials that can be produced. The very best steels available are used in Ford manufacture. The plate glass for windshields and windows is as perfect as can be made. Upholstery material contains a larger percentage of wool than is ordinarily specified—even for much higher priced cars. The basic features of Ford design have never been improved upon by any manufacturer.

No other car offers greater dependability. The Ford car has won the favor of millions of users, under every conceivable motor- ing condition. Its convenience is known and appreciated the world over; its performance is taken for granted.

Such quality is possible at Ford prices because every operation, from mining of ore to final assembly, is under direct control of the Ford Motor Company.

Iron is taken from Ford mines in Michigan; coal from the Company's mines in Kentucky and West Virginia. Glass comes from Ford glass plants; wood from the Ford timber tracts in the North. Raw materials and finished products are carried over the Company's own transportation routes; coke ovens, blast furnaces, a steel mill, foundries and saw mills—all are part of this complete organization. There are even salvage plants, paper mill, cement plant, etc., to transform waste materials into useful by-products.

In this way every possible economy is effected. Under no other circumstances could Ford quality be had at Ford prices.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Several major league managers are entertaining doubts about the benefit of spring exhibition games between major league clubs.

From the business point of view, inter-league exhibition games are practical because a large part of the heavy expenses of a training camp can be defrayed by the gate money from the exhibition games but the psychological effect upon the players may cost just as much in actual money.

Players do not draw salary for playing in these exhibition games and they do not care to risk salary arms, legs or backs in unnecessary chances on uncertain playing fields. Many of them say the exhibition games amount to nothing and they don't care about results though no ball player likes to lose.

Take the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Robins for an example. When they started their spring series they were not taken too seriously as pennant possibilities but the Robins with a fine looking pitching staff, entered the first division hope.

The Yankees got away to a flying start and murdered the best pitching Brooklyn had for fourteen consecutive victories. The Yanks got the winning habit, gained faith in themselves and returned to New York with a club that looks like a pennant possibility. The Robins fell into a losing habit, lost heart, and there is no way to tell what effect it will have upon them if they don't get a good start in championship competition.

That spring series between the two clubs may turn out to have been the makings of the Yankees and it might be that it will be the ruin of the Robins.

Bucky Harris, the shrewd young manager of the Washington Senators, was discussing the benefits of exhibition games one night in his hotel in Tampa.

"Personally," he said, "I don't attach too much importance to exhibition games because they are staged primarily for the purpose of getting practice. When I first started to manage this club I wanted to win every game but I've grown out of a lot of that college stuff now. But as a manager of a club and not as one of the players I realize that the games are very important for the moral effect upon the club as a whole. It is necessary to cultivate the winning habit and when the players start to losing faith in themselves, it is hard to recover.

"For that reason I felt fortunate in being able to arrange several of these exhibition tours with the New York Giants because they gave us real competition. It isn't well to knock over a bunch of set-ups because the players know that it means nothing but to beat a good club means everything. I didn't want to win every game from the Giants, because I knew that we couldn't do it but I did want the boys to make a good showing and they have done it so far. We don't crow when we beat the Giants and we don't cry when they down us."

Some of the lower ranking major league clubs are rushed along in their training primarily for the purpose of beating opposition in the spring games and drawing good gate money. One National League team is said to have made all its training expenses for two seasons by pointing for the exhibition games even if it did injure the condition of the team for the championship race.

One or two of the major league clubs refused this spring to book inter-league exhibition games and confined their training to games with minor league clubs. The class of the minor league teams is improving so much that some of the exhibition between a major league and a minor league team drew as much money at the gate as two major league clubs and the split was even better in proportion.

The spring exhibition games have become so thoroughly established that some minor abuses already have been noticed and it is understood that Commissioner Landis will ask the club owners this winter to give him control over these games.

Old Dog Won't Learn New Tricks? Well, Mitchell Has New Delivery

They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks. Maybe not. But apparently pitchers are in a different class. For Clarence Mitchell, veteran and much shifted hurler now with the Phillies, is displaying for the first time a nifty knuckle ball, which bids fair to make him a more valuable hurler. He started experimenting with it last fall and is now ready to use it, he avers.

The Theatre

"Her performance (nowever mercurial you may be in remembering some of her past performances) is amazing, the outstanding piece of acting of the season.

Thus does the New Yorker write about our own Alice Brady, one-time star of the silver-sheet, long missed from the show-biz haunts; and now turned up in William Hurlburt's "Bride of the Lamb," playing at the Greenwich Village Theater in New York. And doing it well.

"Bride of the Lamb" is a tragedy done on religion, with a preacher in the leadin' role such as Somerset Maugham gave us in "Rain." It is a cynical piece, dealing with the crude romance of a tent-revivalist and a housewife bound to convention by a drunken husband and a snuffling child.

Critics say Hurlburt might have done a great thing by making a comedy of the piece. Instead he wound it up with madness and murder as the only sequel to a sordid whirlpool of life, he had created.

Excellent acting has gone into the effort, including that of Miss Brady. Several years ago her rather capable father set out to make her a movie luminary, which he did. Then she crossed with him through an unfortunate marriage.

Her return to public life found her following the footlights instead of the Kleig light path. Maybe she has lived a lot since the studio days and if she has, she should be the finer actress for it. As we remember her screen performances, there was room for improvement.

Yes, Miss Brady had many fans. Not the least of these was the late Dr. Ida Woods, of Xenia, with whom she carried on a regular correspondence. In fact Dr. Woods visited the actress in New York. Before her death, she prized gifts from Miss Brady; that were tokens of the attachment that had sprung up between them.

MASONS WILL ERECT $55,000 ANNEX TO TEMPLE BUILDING

Bids will be accepted soon and contracts let for construction of a $55,000 annex to the Roberts illa, acquired by Xenia Masons at their new Masonic Temple, it was announced Wednesday.

Ground is expected to be broken for the work about May 1 and it is planned to complete the project by next fall.

Plans for the building have been drawn up by Harley W. Owens, Xenia architect and building supervisor, but specifications have not been completed.

Annex to be built will be a two-story extension connecting the villa on the east side. It will be constructed of steel, brick and cement. Dimensions are 75 feet by 80 feet.

When completed it will contain a dining room or banquet hall which may also be used as an auditorium, on the first floor. Second floor will be devoted to lodge purposes. Property rooms and other smaller rooms will also be included on the ground floor.

Y. W. C. A. BIENNIAL CONVENTION ASSEMBLES IN MILWAUKEE NOW

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 21.—Women prominent in religious and social work from all parts of the world were gathered here today for the opening of the biennial convention of the Young Women's Christian Association which will be in session until April 27.

Practically every section of the world will be represented at the gathering, by noted speakers. Among the prominent American women taking a part in the convention will be Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Delegates from all walks of life, college girls, business women, society women, factory workers, take part in the discussion on legislation affecting the woman worker. Which will be one of the features of the program.

Milwaukee's contribution to the convention will be a huge pageant in which more than 800 persons will take part. The pageant, which is called "Forward Through the Ages" represents the history of woman from the early ages to the present time. It is being produced under the direction of Miss Era Betzner, New York, while the making of costumes, the building of scenery and selection of the cast, will be in the hands of local representatives.

Most of the "props" used in the pageant have been made at the Y. W. C. A. club house, where a corps of volunteer workers have been working daily for the past month. The pageant is given in seven scenes.

The part of "Woman" is being played by Mrs. J. Tracy Hale, Milwaukee society woman, while Olivia Orth Anderson plays the part of Mme. Roland, during the French Revolution episode, which employs a mob scene of several hundred and is one of the most effective scenes of the pageant. Hazel Lee Barbour will act as Joan of Arc and Mrs. Samuel O. Buckner, Chas. Mercein and S. J. Purchar will have star roles. The pageant will be given on April 24.

Y. W. C. A. executives from different sections of the country have been arriving daily making final arrangements for the opening of the convention, which is said to be one of the largest ever held by the organization.

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, Chicago, is to be the principal speaker at the convention. As a member of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago, he is widely known throughout the country as a lecturer and religious leader.

DO YOU LIKE MYSTERY TALES? THEN YOU ARE RATED NORMAL HUMAN BEING

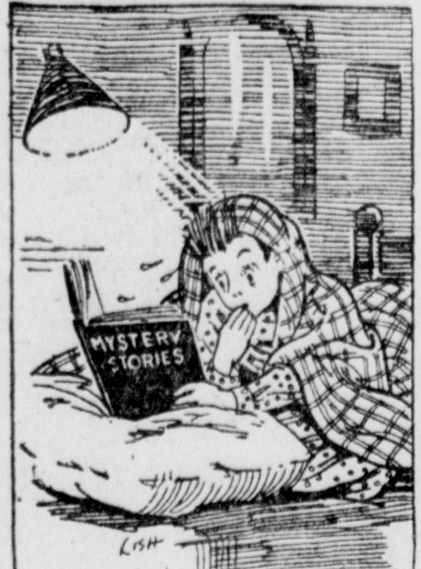

From the small boy who shakes and shivers in the solitude of his own bedroom with a "thriller" before his popping eyes, to the dignified business man who seeks recreation and diversion in the scientific detective story, everybody seems to love a tale of mystery.

Mystery tales have a lure for all classes, but the type of mystery must fit the age of the reader. The small youngster, it is found, likes quite natural fascination for most people. Hence the great crowds that attend famous criminal trials.

"The criminal is the abnormal creature. The normal man, the average, homekeeping, hard-working man or woman finds in reading of the ceaseless contest between the law and the law-breaker some compensation for lack of adventure in his own life. The average reader sits safely and decently and honestly by his own fireside in the evening, opens the pages of a mystery story and sets forth into the unknown."

"Mystery stories take us back to the wonderment of childhood. They take us out of ourselves and our work-day world. They make us forget our surroundings and enthrall us by happenings in a universe that we don't know. In this way they are a supreme entertainment."

the blood-and-thunder type with hair-raising episodes in each chapter. Grownups read detective novels regularly according to libraries and book store employees, but the plot must be not easily understood, and the less bloodshed the greater the interest.

Libraries find this type of fiction ranks high in point of popularity among patrons. In one library in Chicago it has been found necessary to make a separate file of these volumes, and although this list does not include all stories that may be so classified, it contains nearly 500 books.

Worn look of the pages of mystery volumes at the local library themselves to the popular love of mystery stories. Several famous men including several presidents have found a source of entertainment in detective novels. The analytical mind of the big business man seem to find particularly strong appeal in this type of fiction.

However, even those of lesser talents and accomplishments are attracted. Adventure, thrills and particularly suspense of this mystery novel are its chief characteristics and the secret of its appeal.

Modern book and magazine writers today are leaning more and more strongly to detective or mystery stories. They hold the interest, are usually not dry reading and challenge the reader's intellect. Everyone it is said, has a detective instinct.

Mrs. Marie Belloc-Lowndes, herself a famous writer of such tales, has explained the psychology of the mystery story's appeal. "They touch the most acute of what one might call the mental nerves," she said. "the never of fear. They give you what the French call a 'frisson'—a shudder—a thrill, no other form of fiction gives."

"In the mystery story a feeling of wonderment on the part of the reader grows as the story grows. The reader is held in breathless suspense to the end. He cannot figure how the story is to develop and how it is to finish. And this is especially true of crime stories. Crime exercises a peculiar but

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Apr. 21.—John H. McNeil, who saved twenty-one lives in the Jamison mine disaster last January, was dead at his home here today, the result of a fall down a flight of stairs. McNeil was the hero, digging coal underground with fellow workmen when a blast shattered the mine, the valiant miner herded his frantic comrades into an ante-chamber and calmly erected a barricade to protect them from gases. When pure air had been forced into the shaft, McNeil led the men to safety.

BERNARD MACFADDEN

If poison has been swallowed it is necessary to empty the stomach immediately. Emetics should be given repeatedly, either of mustard, common salt or powdered alum. In the proportion of a teaspoonful of any to a glass of water. If away from any house, with nothing but cold water available this should be used freely, inducing the vomiting by tickling the throat with a finger. Remember that it is imperative to empty and cleanse the stomach through.

After this, give white of egg very freely, or, if not at hand use milk instead. Meanwhile full hot enemata should be given, one after the other. If the patient seems drowsy and the heart action seems to diminish, hot fomentations should be placed over the heart and changed frequently, with heat also applied to the feet. In corrosive sublimated cases or other mercurial poisonings it will be well to give one or two full retained rectal irrigations of an albuminous liquid, such as milk with white of egg beaten up in it.

After continuous vomiting and thorough rectal irrigation, full hot baths (100 degrees Fahrenheit) will be valuable for eliminating the poisons absorbed into the circulation, combined with rubbing. Meanwhile the patient should continue to drink large quantities of milk, or water containing milk or white of egg beaten up. There are some special antidotes for various specific poisons, but the above treatment will always answer, and especially when one does not know the nature of the poison. Hot air baths are also effective as eliminants in such cases and hot blanket packs; a woolen blanket wrung out of water as hot as the patient can bear should be used. Great care must be exercised to not allow it to continue long enough to become exhausting and depressing. The hot blanket pack may be substituted for the hot tub bath if the latter is not convenient or possible. These should be followed by quick cold ablutions.

Optims and other poisons not swallowed should have similar constitutional treatment, including the hot enemata, though not the emetics. Copious drinking of warm water, if convenient. If cold to spine, hot fomentations to heart and feet, or if convenient, full hot baths.

BERNARD MACFADDEN

Hair Dry, Brittle from Constant Waving, Curling

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

—Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Dandoline" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, become incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Dandoline" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Considerable significance was attached to the meeting due to the presence of both Governor Donahy and State Director of Agriculture Charles V. Truax.

Prior to the session, however, Gov. Donahy said Truax and members of the board of agriculture will have charge of the fair.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT
IV—HIGH STAKES

VIRGINIA had tried her best to impress me with the necessity of being nice to our landlord, Frank Harrison.

"He's giving us this apartment at a very low rate," she told me, "otherwise we never could afford to live in such a smart neighborhood. And he's done a great deal of redecorating for us that wasn't called for at all. So be nice to him."

I hate this "being nice to" anybody with a lively sense of favors to come, but of course it was all in the day's work to be pleasant to Mr. Harrison. So as we drove along to the smart supper club that he had selected I did what I could. That is, I played chorus while he talked. We had plenty of opportunity, as traffic near the opera house was terrific, and the club we were going to was in the Fifties, blocks away.

He was quite impressed with his own importance, which I wouldn't have minded so much if he hadn't insisted on talking about it.

But it was even worse when he tried to come down to what he considered my level, and tried to be boyish and full of fun and slangy. "Guess we'll show 'em all right, won't we?" he remarked, as we reached the club, and he helped me out of the car. "I'm crazy about dancing—hot dog!"

I sighed and wished I were home in bed. Just the first of my impossible wishes for the evening! The club was in a big old house, the front of which had been left just as it was. Usually they do those places over with Italian looking awnings or Russian insignia on the front, which belong to the houses about as much as spaghetti on Irish stew.

A colored butler ushered us in, and when we had left our wraps we went to the ball room, a charming place, with beautiful crystal chandeliers. The atmosphere was perfect, really that of a party in a private house. The small tables were in what had been the drawing-room and library. The club was very exclusive, Frank Harrison assured me—one had to be passed by the directors to get in.

I simply adored it. I began to be happier. After all, I knew that I looked nice, in my new frock of pink and silver, and the orchids Frank Harrison had sent me were gorgeous, and life might be worth living even if my husband had chosen to desert me!

I smiled at Harrison, not because I cared anything about him but just because I felt happy. But of course he took it to himself—men always do!

"How about champagne?" he asked, as the waiter paused beside our table. I wondered if I'd ever know him well enough to tell him to go ahead and order expensive things without making such a pest of it. I agreed, and suggested some other things, not that I was hungry, but I knew that he'd probably pick just the wrong ones, and the waiter was looking at us so superciliously that I felt I couldn't stand that.

"And now let's dance," urged Harrison. "That's some music! Believe me, baby, this is going to be one great big night!"

He was dancing with a cute, red-haired girl.

smart dance club is worth half a dozen on a train that's hundreds of miles away, and going in the opposite direction!

But I realized that I'd never noticed young people people my own age, so much as I did that evening. The room seemed to be full of them. There was a party of debutantes with the nicest looking chaps as escorts. I sat and watched them, and wondered why my life couldn't have made me one of them, instead of a semi-widow with a man old enough to be my father. Everybody else looked so young!

There was one such nice chap, big and dark, who looked as if he'd be such fun. He'd glanced my way several times. He was dancing with a cute red-haired girl, a lot like the one I could see that she was quite crazy about him.

"Bet I could cut her out," I thought, making a little wager with myself. "I'd like to know him—and he looks as if he'd like to know me."

And then a man who had been acting as master of ceremonies stepped into the middle of the floor. "By special request, we're going to have a Paul Jones," he announced. "Everybody dance!" They wouldn't have dared do it in a less exclusive club of course. But here it was quite all right. I jumped to my feet, ignoring Harrison's protest that of course we wouldn't join in. I had a queer little feeling that Fate was playing into my hands, and rescuing me from utter boredom.

Position: Lying on back, with hands alongside the body.

Exercise: Raise head and look at toes.

The position is much the same as that for the "Spread," but the arms are beside the body instead of under the thighs. The movement is simple—merely raise your head and look at your toes. Be sure not to raise the feet off the floor. You will quickly notice the effect on the muscles of the neck and back.
